SEARCH FOR ASSAILANT

Escape Made in Dark of Night From Pool Room Scene

Jesus Grageda, 40, who was shot Sunday night following a brawl in a Five Points pool hall, died shortly after noon in the Community hospital Wednesday. And with the death of Grageda, the Redwood City police department speeded up the search to the task of tracking Alvarez after his disappearance following the shooting.

Grageda was shot through the abdomen by Alvarez when he left the pool hall where the two had been quarreling. He told officers that Alvarez had held a grudge against him for some time, but that he did not know the reason of Alvarez' animosity. He was in the pool hall, he told police, when Alvarez came in. Alvarez, he said, had been drinking, and tried to pick a fight with him. He then left the place, and Alvarez followed him, and shot him.

The shooting took place behind a large sign board near Five Points. When those who heard the shot went to investigate, they found Grageda badly wounded, but Alvarez was not seen. Grageda was not armed.

Grageda was taken to the Community hispital, where it was found that the bullet from Alvarez' gun had pierced his intestines in several places. It was at first believed that he might recover, but his condition failed to improve, and his death followed.

With Grageda's death charges of murder were placed against his assailant instead of charges of attack with intent to commit murder, had previously been placed against him.

An inquest will be held into Grageda's death by Coroner J. C. McGovern.

Fire Department Makes Record of Time Sans Alarm

The fire department yesterday morning tied its record for length of time during which there has been no alarm turned in. Last year the department set a record of 33 days during which there was no alarm. Yesterday morning marked the 33rd day this year in which no alarm of any kind has been received by the department.

It is hoped by the firemen that this year may see even a better showing than last year brought forth. The absence of fires is due in part to the rainy weather, but in a large measure to the precautions taken by the firemen themselves in inspecting and removing fire hazards and in inculcating in the people of Redwood City a realization of the fire danger and a desire to maintain the city's fire loss at a minimum.

While we have here in Redwood City one of the best and most amply equipped volunteer fire departments in the United States, and a department which has done much to keep the city's fire loss down, yet it is better to prevent fires, than to put them out after they start.

MANY VISITORS TO TOUR STATE

More Than 2,000,000 Tourists Will Motor Into California This Year

ESTIMATE 'BUMPER CROP'

Accurate Check Provided by State Quarantine Stations

By MELVIN LORD
(United Press Staff Correspondenut)

SACRAMENTO, March 19—(U.P.)—More than 2,000,000 tourists will motor into California this year, through the state's 25 portals.

This estimate of at least one "bumper crop" was compiled by A. C. Fleury, chief quarantine supervisor of the state department of agriculture, on the basis of past activities of California's "border legion."

An accurate check of incoming cars is provided through the state's quarantine inspection stations located on all highways entering California.

During 1930, motorists equivalent to nearly 33 per cent of the state's population skimmed in over desert highways or roared down mountain passes 1,864,000 strong.

This number represented an increase of approximately 500,000 over the visitors of the preceeding year, Fleury estimated. While the economic situation may prevent a similar increase in this year's traffic, the department's estimate of 2,000,000 is considered conservative.

While figures for former years also included Californians returning home, department officials claim the percentage of this class is small, so that the incoming traffic toals represent mostly visitors attracted to the golden state.

History is expected to repeat itself insofar as the bulk of the travel coming from any one general direction will continue through the northern portals on all-year highways. A total of 302,422 cars entered the state from Oregon last year.

"However, southern California points probably will show a steady increase," Fleury said. More than 210,000 cars came in this way last year.

Truckee in the past has been one of the most poplar of the Sierran gateways, and it is estimated that approximately 90,000 out-of-state cars will hit California highways at this point for the first time during 1931.

BOY KILLED BY TRAILER ON BRIDGE

San Francisco Youth Slips Beneath Wheels of Moving Vehicle

17-YEAR OLD SCHOOL BOY

Groans of Lad Attract Station Attendant

Jack E. Bacon, 17 year-old school boy of San Francisco suffered injuries which resulted in his death almost immediately when he was run over Wednesday night on the San Mateo-Hayward bridge. The youth was discovered by H. L. Smith, oil station operator at the service station on the bridge. Smith heard the boy groaning and found his crushed body on the bridge.

Three trucks with trailers had just passed over the bridge and had stopped at the toll gate. It was just after the last of these three, one belonging to the Harm-Frazier company of San Francisco had passed that the injured boy was found, and it is believed that he was riding on the tongue of the trailer betwen the truck and trailer, and had endeavored to jump off on the bridge and been caught under the wheels of the latter vehicle.

The boy was the son of William Penney, of 2560 Truman street, Oakland, and was residing with an uncle, John T. Todd, 226 19th avenue, San Francisco, and attended school in San Francisco.

The boy was placed in an ambulance to be taken to the Mills Memorial hospital in San Mateo, but died enroute to the hospital. The sheriff's office was notified, and Deputy Sheriff Joseph Meeks was sent to investigate the accident. Meeks believed the boy was riding on the truck without the knowledge of the driver, and in endeavoring to jump off had slipped and been caught beneath the wheels.

FAST MARCHBANK MOUNTS COME FOR TANFORAN MEET

Racing Season to Open at San Bruno on Last Day of Month With Brilliant Aggregation of Fleet Steeds from Leading Stables of the Nation

John W. Marchbank's stable will leave Agua Caliente for Tanforan on Monday, and on arrival will be immediately prepared for the racing to open at the San Bruno track Tuesday, March thirty-first. The "Heather" silks are extremely popular throughout the county, having been victorious on the principal courses of the East as well as of the West.

The master of Heather Farm was highly delighted with the running of his "home-breds" at the two previous meeting at Tarforan and is hopeful of achieving something noteworthy at the fast approaching session of the sport. Latest reports from the south are that all of the large string are near the height of their form.

Owner Marchbank naturally is more interested in the performances of his colts and fillies at Tanforan than at any other racing plant, however important it may loom in the sporting world, as he not only wishes to have the joy of witnessing their triumphs on the "home grounds" but wants his legion of friends to share in the thrills.

The three year old De Swasey, victor of the Breeders Association Handicap at Tanforan last fall; Mopeco, a promising colt of the same age as De Swasey; Maxwell M, Givanna and other two year olds that should hold their own in any company, will carry the Marchbank silks at the local meet.

A good line on the colts and fillies has been furnished by racing at Agua Caliente and their breeder now knows just what he has, either for San Francisco racing or for that of such Eastern tracks as Belmont Park and Saratoga. It has long been the ambition of the owner of Heather Farm to "show" his New York friends the kind of thoroughbreds that are reared out this way.

PROPOSED BILL WILL TAX RADIO RECEIVING SETS

A Fee Is Being Considered by Members of the State Legislature

TO END "TIRESOME" ADS

Widespread Oppostion Has Developed to Measure

By J. F. McLAUGHLIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, March 19—(U.P.) Would you pay a license fee to end the "tiresome" advertising programs on the radio?

Such a fee is under consideration by members of the state legislature which would place a tax of 50 cents on each radio set to be paid to the state

Widespread opposition has developed to the measure, introduced by Senator J. I. Wagy, Bakersfield, which would also set up a commission to collect fees and regulate radio receiving and broadcasting throughout the state.

In its place a number of the legislators have discussed restrictions on radio advertising, proposing that, if necessary a fee should be paid by radio owners to support the broadcasting company.

They point to countries outside United States and Canada, where the cost of broadcasting is paid by a system of license fees levied on radio sets in use.

These fees range from as low as 39 cents in France to as high as $44 per set in Turkey. The average license fee, however, runs between three and four dollars a year.

Foreign countries prefer this system, having a prejudice against mixing advertising with radio entertainment. They hold that a program should not be interspersed with forced talks on the alleged value of proprietary articles.

Proponents of the plan have not yet worked out details under which the fees would be collected and the revenues allocated to the various broadcasting stations.

The broadcasting systems and chains have stated that they would prefer to send out programs free from advertising, but that in order to operate and furnish the public with entertainment, it is necessary to obtain revenue from some source.

Advertising, up till now, has been the only possible means for this revenue.

Two Cars Damaged In Crossing Crash

Two cars were damaged in a crash at the intersection of Webster and Marshall streets at 6:45 Tuesday evening. On of the cars was driven by H. Butterfield, 1132 Madison street, projector operator at the Sequoia theatre; the other by W. Morris, Willow road, Palo Alto. Morris was driving a truck loaded with vegetables.

Butterfield stated that he was making a left-hand turn onto Marshall street when he saw the other machine. He tried to avoid hitting the other car by swerving to the left, but struck the machine and glanced off to strike an electric pole. The same account of the accident was given by Morris.

The accident was investigated by Officer Fogarty, who sent both cars to the Sequoia garage. Butterfield was taken to Dr. Howe's office where two gashes in his head were sewed up. Dr. Howe stated that the man had been drinking, but was not intoxicated.

Morris was taken to his home by Otway Cosgrave, former manager of the Sequoia theatre.

Wise Cacks I Have Met

Wise cracks we have ever with us. A great field of enquery awaits the patient historian who compiles a history of wise cracks from the time that Adam first pulled that one about the "apple a day" to the present. Our own experience is so limited that we hesitate to begin so important a labor. But for the convenience of some one who may in the future assay this noble task, we pause to recall a few.

Our own recollection goes back to the days of "Shoo fly, don't bother me." This was followed shortly by "Where did you get that hat?" Then came "No flies on us," "Tell it to Sweeney," "Go away back and sit down," "O, you kid," "Twenty-three, skidoo," and "Get the hook." Then what a rare crop of wise crackers must have appeared to produce such masterpieces as "I should worry" and the hundreds of variations of that simple statement. And then there was the endless varieties of the "I'm the guy" gag. The only one we can recall just now is the one about "I'm the guy that put the rain in Rainier."

Then the world passed through the stage when no conversation was complete if it did not contain the word "piffel." The the World War foisted the Frenchy "Ooo, la la" onto an unsuspecting American public. And now, as no thought-inspiring editorial such as this could be complete without considering the present trend, we have those famous words of Andy, "Aint that sumpin."

Well AINT that sumpin?

Prince's Triumphal Tour

Advices from Latin America indicate that the Prince of Wales has been doing a magnificent job as salesman for Great Britain in the southern countries. Yet, despite the glamor of banquets, speeches, ovations and crowds, there is reason to believe that Britain's engaging young heir-apparent is a wearied and somewhat wistful figure. Here is an intimate and sympathetic portrait of him, drawn for the American Magazine by the distinguished G. K. Chesterton:

"The whole personality of the Prince has from the first been full of a sort of intense individualism, which is the instinct of escape. He is the sort of man who would at any time have preferred to go off on his own, and be a sort of sprightly spectator of life. Certainly he would rather be the spectator than the spectacle. He is not quite sufficiently solemn to be spectacular.

"In temperament he is very national, but in tone he is necessarily more international, for it is not in the nature of his epoch or his experience to be unconscious of international things.

"In convictions, in the sense of theories, he probably has a great deal of that carelessness which has come from the breakdown of so many scientific certainties and the early death of so many religions.

The shy, ironical and self-conscious quality of the serious-minded young men of the Prince's day and generation is due largely, according to Mr. Chesterton, to their having lived through the experience of the Great War. This is what has made them less garrulous than their fathers. Whether one calls it embarrassment or unembarrassment, it is always there, and the Prince carries it on his face, even when he deliberately dismisses it from his behavior. The whole world watches with a growing interest to see what this new sort of man will make of the ancient business of Monarchy, when his time comes to occupy the ancient Kingship of the English."

Might be that if congress would just adjourn for ten years or more the country would quickly recover from many of its ills. Until then, however, it is highly important that we send only real business men to congress.

Some towns have a curfew that sends boys home at 9 o'clock. In most towns it isn't the boys who need to be sent home at 9 o'clock, its the grown-ups. Most of the devilment done after 9 o'clock is done by the grown-ups.

I cannot conceive of a wholesome social order or a sound economic system that does not have its root in religious faith. . . . The profound purposes of the American people . . are largely religious in origin. This country is supremely dedicated, not to the pursuit of material riches, but to pursuit of a richer life for the individual.—Herbert Hoover.

"Boost Your Town Week"

"Know and Boost Your Town Week," staged annually by Exchange Clubs of the country in connection with our National Community Week celebration, is another of the many service projects sponsored by Exchange that has won the whole-hearted support of communities throughout the nation.

This seven-day campaign to arouse public pride, loyalty, and ambition—to get every citizen to know his home-town and boost for its needed improvements—is so practical and precipitates so much real good in the community that at once it is in a class of its own. It is not a sensational proposition to attract attention, nor to provide a good time for Exchange Club members. It is a serious, productive, city-wide movement for community progress.

The "Boost Your Town Week" program is unique in that each day is devoted to a different phase of community interest to know and boost. You have, as you know, "Go to Church Sunday, " "Clean-up Day," "Public Institutions' Day," "Business Good Will Day," "Public Improvements' Day," "Child Welfare Day," "Farmers' Day or Industrial Day."

Your town may carry out the program for a day or two emphasizing any one or all the interests outlined for the week, or it may launch the entire week's program for getting acquainted with the features of your community that are fine and unusual and starting activity for needed improvements.

Your town probably has an unusual art museum—or perhaps a zoo, fine schools, beautiful churches, attractive public buildings, historic prestige,—some feature which makes it distinctive among neighboring towns. But how many people appreciate this? The first objective of "Know and Boost Your Town Week" is to take time and get acquainted with your community's distinctive features—its advantages, commercial importance, opportunities. Know what your city has to be proud of and make the most of it!

Get acquainted, as well, with its disadvantages. Supposing your depot is shabby—the river front unsightly—parks littered with papers and trash—there are no welcome signs to show tourists that they are arriving in a great little town with every accommodation for them. Perhaps your town needs a hospital or an air port. "Boost Your Town Week' is your big opportunity. Bring these needs before your fellow citizens. Then get together and do something about it. Paint the depot. Clean up your river front and parks. Put up your welcome signs.

"Know and Boost Your Town Week" is becoming an institution in Exchange Club communities throughout the nation.

The actual benefits and lasting influence of a campaign of this sort makes it invaluable to the community, not only in tangible accomplishment, but in the intangible bond of co-operation established between the agencies of the community. It is building for the future."

Colonel Lindberg, the Boy's Popular Hero

Colonel Lindbergh is still the American boy's hero, according to a study being made by the Boys' Club Federation of America, which is made up of 253 clubs scattered throughout the United States with a total membership of nearly 250,000.

American boys are reading aviation stories, are building airplane models in workshops in boys' clubs, are ambitious to become aviators when they grow up and regard Lindbergh as the greatest man in the country, according to the survey.

In many communities where playgrounds are provided to play baseball, Babe Ruth is the popular hero. The Chicago lad thinks Hack Wilson a great man and the New York boy admires Lou Gehrig.

Admiral Richard E. Byrd is another popular hero among boys. Gene Tunney is another.

New York boys by the score cast their vote for "Al" Smith as the most popular man.

Coach Knute Rockne of Notre Dame has also a tremendous following among the boys.

The Boys' Club Federation is making a study of boys' ambitions, their aspirations, their favorite vocations and their popular heroes The survey shows that the average boy in the city is very much air-minded.

Lent's Reward

Nearly 2,000 years ago a man went into the wilderness to fast and meditate. . . . .

Meditation whether it be during Lent and regardless of one's reigious creed is satisfying to the soul. It gives man understanding of himself. And that brings peace of mind and contentment in a fuller degree than any other attainment of man will ever yield.

The spiritual brings no worries, only peace. It is the basic principle of life and until we find it, we find life confusing and bewildering. And that is the purpose of meditation whether it is called Lent or something else.—Battle Creek (Mich) Enqiurer and News.

Love's Sacrifice

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND CHARACTERS

Sally Todd and Lois Montgomery seek careers in New York. Sally enters hospital training, after despairing of a career in the movies, and Lois marries a wealthy man many years her senior. Their paths diverge somewhat, for Lois's husband disapproves of Sally, who is very gay. On several occasions, after late parties, she has taken drugs to carry her through the day and is dismissed from the hospital. Lois provides her with a home and Dr. Dale Randolph offers her a job. She falls in love with him. He is strongly attracted to Lois. Sally, befuddled by drugs, tells him she loves him. He dismisses her, but Lois persuades him to give her another chance. Sally, instead of being grateful, becomes jealous. Lois's husband is informed that she is in love with Randolph. He watches her closely, particularly when she is in Randolph's company. Sally's brother, Bert, who was in love with Lois at home, comes to New York. Sally tells him Lois is unhappily married and still in love with him. His attentions to Lois bring a remonstrance from Walton. Lois does not suspect that her husband, who resents her failure to aid him in realizing his social ambitions, is getting very tired of her. Hoping to find her in some indiscretion, he has her shadowed. He enlists Sally as an ally.

As she lifted the telephone-receiver, Lois expected to hear Dale Randolph's voice, but instead, Sally's tones came over the wire. Lois gave a gasp of relief.

"How did you know where to find me?" she said faintly. "Did Bert tell you?"

"Not a word," said Sally. "I haven't seen him. But when they told me at the Maurice that you had checked out, I was stumped. Then I remembered that one day, when we were passing the Gorham Hill Hotel, we both agreed that we'd take refuge there, if ever we wanted to get away from everyone. And I ....."

"Sally," insisted Lois, "listen to me a moment. How did you know I'd been at the Maurice. Did Bert say that, and had he told anyone else?"

"No," answered Sally. "I managed to worm that much information out of your maid last night. Bert's confidences did not include that fact. He merely said something about the two of you going somewhere together, and I ....."

Still panic-stricken, Lois asked whether Sally had told Dale Randolph her whereabouts.

"No," said Sally again. "I didn't know where you were when he was here last night. He came out in a terrible state of mind, looking for Bert, and, when Bert telephoned that you and he were planning to elope, the doctor took his hat and rushed off. He's probably still looking for you."

"Please don't tell him where I am," begged Lois. "I'll write you and explain everything a little later."

"But, at least, tell me what you're going to do," urged Saly. "This elopement, if that's what it is, sounds crazier to me than anything I ever thought of."

"I can't tell you anything now," said Lois, "but you'll hear from me soon. In the meantime, don't tell anyone where I am. I'll be leaving very shortly."

Sally hung up the receiver in a reflective mood. "What on earth has happened?" she said to herself. Bert's brief announcement over the telephone the previous evening had sounded almost fantastic. But evidently it had been true. She had so long regarded Lois as a dependable, stable person that this realization seemed to turn the world upside down.

"Someone ought to step in and stop them," she told herself. "But who's the person to do that."

She seized the receiver and called the Walton residence. For several moments there was no answer. Then she heard a sleepy voice.

"Mr. Walton there?" she questioned. "Tell him Miss Todd must speak to him at once."

But Mr. Walton was not in . . . . . No one seemed to know when he would return. He had not been home for several days. Sally pondered. She hadn't the remotest idea where to reach Bert. And he wouldn't listen to her, if she did succeed in finding him.

In desperation she called Dale Randolph's number. His man answered and told her that Dr. Randolph had not been at home that night. Would Miss Todd leave a message?

"Tell him to telephone Mrs. Walton at the Gordon Hill Hotel," said Sally, and hung up the receiver with a feeling of virtue such as she had not had in months.

When Dale Randolph returned to his apartment an hour later, weary and dispirited as a result of his failure to find Lois, his man gave him Sally's message. At first, he thought that she was playing a cruel trick on him, for he doubted very much whether her jealous nature would allow her to be magnanimous. Still, he would see what could be done.

He called the hotel and waited impatiently until the clerk answered. . . . Then, with a groan of dismay, he asked: "When did she leave? . . . . Do you know her destination? . . . . ."

But there was, apparently, no information to be had Dr. Randolph rushed out of his apartment and had hailed a cab before he realized that he was hatless and without his topcoat. "The Gorham Hill Hotel," he said to the driver. "Quick. Double fare."

At the hotel he learned from the taxi starter that a young woman answering to the description of Lois had left for Grand Central station, accompanied by a gentleman. "Not a gentleman exactly," amended the taxi starter. "Sort of careless-looking person."

That was something. But where would they go from Grand Central? Still, he had made a start in tracing her, so he leaped into a cab and was off for the station. It was crowded. No sign of a familiar face. If Lois and Bert were in the station at the moment, he stood very little chance of finding them. And to unearth a clue, if they had left—impossible.

He stood fuming before the information booth when a hand touched his arm and he whirled about to see an acquaintance grinning at him. Dr. Randolph nodded briefly, but the man was disposed to chat.

"Just put my sister on the Western Express," he said. "And I thought I saw a friend of yours boarding the same train."

Dale Randolph stared at him. "Young Mrs. Walton," the man was saying. "She seemed . . . . ."

Suddenly he realized that he was alone. Randolph was sprinting toward the Western Express gate. It was closed. "The last section left ten minutes ago," the gate-keeper told him. "First stop is five hours out."

MENLO PARK

The council meeting next Tuesday evening promises to be interesting as many problems will come before the council for discussion. The members are working diligently for the best interests of the city, giving their time and energy to the work without compensation. The only pay they receive is some caustic criticism from certain disgrunted property owners.

Mrs. Ada C. Krebs, a member of a pioneer family of the state, passed away in San Francisco Tuesday morning at the age of 80. Some years ago she lived in a palatial home at Athreton and while there took an important part in local affairs.

Mark Loughlin, for many years the assistant station agent here, has been transferred to Mayfield at a higher salary. Mr. Loughlin will continue to reside in Menlo Park where he is extremely popular.

Senator S. M. Shortridge has been designated by the state legislature at Sacramento to address that body. Mr. Shortridge is now in Los Angeles but is expected here in a few days and after a short rest will proceed to Sacramento to tell the legislature what the late congress did.

The card party given by the P. T. A. at Los Lomitas last Friday evening was enjoyed by a large crowd. The lunch following the contest brought joy to the hungry players. The first prize was won by Meta Walters, second by Mrs. Carl Sparks, third Geo. Williams, fourth Edna Kattinger, fifth Ward E. Monroe, sixth Mrs. W. E. Monroe, seventh Robert Carlson.

The real estate board met at noon on Saturday last at San Mateo. All members were present and many problems affecting to public discussed. W. E. Monroe represented Menlo Park.

The entertainment Monday night in honor of St. Patrick was largely attended, in fact it was a record breaking crowd, the largest that has ever been seen in a performance in Menlo Park. The program was good and everyone went away happy.

Ceres Felix has applied in the superior court of the county of San Mateo at Redwood City for letters of administration upon the estate of J. B. Fexis, who died on March 5. The estate is valued at $6000 and consists of real and personal property. James T. O'Keefe is the attorney for petitioner.

Judge Charles Shurtleff is a candidate for re-election as high school trustee. The election takes place on March 27. The judge should receive a big vote in Menlo Park where he is popular and well liked.

Assistant Fire Chief Steve Gilbert has returned to his trade as plasterer and thus will be unable to fight day fires. He will be here in the evenings to fight any blaze that takes place during nocurnal hours.

M. A. Harris, the popular mayor of Atherton, has perpared plans for a $75,000 home in the vicinity of Menlo Park Golf Links. The home is to be the very last word in modern convenience and comfort.

The death of Joseph M. MacDonough in New York last Saturday, following an operation, recalls his boyhood in Menlo Park. In the early eighties the family lived on the Sneath estate, afterwards the Barney holdings, at Atherton. Mrs. MacDonough's sister was Mrs . J. Coleman and both were the sisters of William O'Brien, a member of the Bonanza firm of Flood, O'Brien, Mackay and Fair. At the death of Mr. O'Brien the sisters inherited the greater portion of his vast fortune. Mrs. Coleman bought a tract of land near St. Patrick's Seminary, now known as Menlo Oaks, and erected a mansion in which she never lived, going East sometime after its completion. She was the mother of the late James V. Coleman, who was prominetn in the state for many years. Mrs. MacDonough had three children, the deceased, the late William O'Brien MacDonough, who established the MacDonough Stock Farm, and a sister Mrs. Agar of New York. The deceased went to New York early in life, there, marrying a society belle and becoming prominent in the state for many Mr. MacDonough was born in San Francisco sixty eight years ago. His boyhood in Menlo Park was uneventful but he is recalled as a bright youth with a pleasing personality and charm that made him many friends. Mr. MacDonough usually spent a few months of the summer at the MacDonough stock farm in charge of his son Dent W. MacDonough. He always enjoyed a visit to the scenes of his youthful dreams. The son, when he received the news of the death of his father, left at once for New York. J. A. Donohue, boyhood friend, was one of the first here to receive a telegram announcing the sad news.

The third series of card party under the auspices of the Native Daughters will take place next Tuesday evening. A large crowd is anticipated.

Rev. Hugh Montgomery, former pastor of Trinity Episcopal church, addressed the Ladies' Guild of the parish Monday last. A large number of ladies greeted their former pastor, who now has charge of a large church at Oakland.

Next Sunday at Flood's pond the members of Menlo Parlor N. S. G. W. will hold a blue rock shoot. There are numerous crack shots in the organization who will compete for valuable prizes. W. T. Casey is boasting that he will capture the trophy but such contenders as Frank Bracesco, Edward O'Keefe, James Andrews and Frank Johnson will endeavor to wrest it from him. A barbecue will be served during the shoot.

Edwin Williman, of Pescadero, has applied in the superior court for letters of administration upon the estate of his brother, Herman Williman, who died at the Oak Grove Villa last week. The estate consists of cash in the Hibernia Bank amounting to $4644.17; one share of stock in the P. G. & E. Company, valued at $100; liberty bond $50; one car $300 and other miscellaneous personal property worth $50. The entire value of the estate will not exceed the sum of $7,500. For many years the deceased was employed at Sacred Heart Academy.

NEW BROOM TO CLEAR THE WAY FOR ELECTIONS

Changes in Party Political System Urged in Calif. Legislature

TO STOP ASSERTED EVILS

Measure Is Not An Attack On Party Primary

By MELVIN LORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, March 19—(UP)—California political parties may be provided with a "new broom" by the state legislature with which to clear the way for the 1932 elections

The bill by Assemblyman Sam Greene, Inglewood, limiting candidates for public offices to their own party nominations is on its way through the legislature after having passed the assembly by a vote of 46 to 18.

The return to a "two party system" and the elimination of asserted evils which have developed since the decrease in party responsibility is seen as the first direct result should the bill become law, according to Assemblyman Hubert Scudder, Sebastopol.

'This measure is not an attack upon the direct primary law, but would strengthen the party primary theory behind the direct primary," Scudder claims.

Other legislators see in the measure an attempt to drive into the open,candidates who have been running under the banners of both the Republican and Democratic parties without giving any particular allegiance to either one. Passage of the bill will clear the political stage for the 1932 presidential campaign, it is claimed.

Democrats in the assembly voted solidly against the measure on the ground it would prevent election in many cases because of the scarcity of Democrats in the state. Proponents of the bill, however, believe it would strengthen the minority party's lines.

Others are opposed to the bill on economic grounds, claiming that the measure, by preventing them from obtaining the nomination of both parties, will necessitate extended and costly campaigns.

Because of the activity of the Democratic opposition to the bill, a special hearing on the measure will be held in the senate elections committee late this week.

WOODSIDE

William Jackson, after a long siege in the hospital at Palo Alto, has returned to his hime and his business here in Woodside.

Because the regular meeting day would fall on Easter vacation week, the next regular meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association has been postponed to April 9th.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Jackling will journey to New York for a two weeks stay during the first half of April, after which they will be resident at their home here for the summer.

The fire department was called out last Friday evening by a fire at the cottage on the Huddart place. The fire started in the roof, presumably from the electric wiring, and considerable damage was done before the blaze was extinguished.

Henry Jenkins, who by his long residence here qualified as one of the pioneers of Woodside, celebrated his 79th birthday on Monday.

The historic 'dobe corner is occupied over each week end by two San Francisco school teachers who find recreation and exercise pruning up the old gruit trees, spading the garden and in other ways following the simple life thus, like Antens of old renewing strength by each contact with Mother Earth.

A school entertainment is being planned under the direction of Mrs. Helen Huebner, the musical director to be given at the school alditorium on next Thursday evening. A cantata entitled "A Quarrel Among the Flowers" will be produced by the children of the school.

Boxer K.O.'s Bandit

BERLIN.—A would-be payroll bandit, who took $275, from a girl cashier of a suburban laundry as she came from a bank, made just one mistake in his flight, he tried to make his getaway across an athletic field where a group of amateur boxers were working out. The boxers heard the girl's cries. One of them knocked the bandit out and turned him over to the police.

"And at all times we shall uphold the words of the founders of the California Real Estate Association, who joined hands in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice to property interests and ethical brokers, insure harmony, provide for the common advancement, promote the general welfare, and secure favorable public opinion."

Real Estate Man Stresses State's Agricultural Value

The importance of agriculture as a basic California industry was stressed by D. D. Watson, president of the California Real Estate Association while here to address the Redwood City District real estate board this week.

Watson is himself a prominent developer of agricultural properties, having large acreages in Brentwood, Contra Costa County, planted to apricots, peaches and other fruits.

Commenting on California's position as second in the nation in agricultural production, he said:

"Agriculture in this state is an $80,000,000 industry, and an industry that reaches such a financial magnitude must be placed in the category of 'big business.'

"Agriculture, providing, as it does, the raw, basic, economic essentials of food, clothing and shelter, always will be the base for the development of all other industrial, commercial and trade activities. With a twelve months' harvest season, California is in an unassailable position.

"And land is the basic element in the capital structure of the farming industry."

The California Realtors have embarked on an ambitious program including legislation and taxation, affiliation of property owners on a local state and national basis, advancement of educational work, publication of the fourth anual encyclopedia of the Golden West, according to the state president.

"An active own your home campaign," he said, "will be conducted and carried on throughout the administration. Home owners form the backbone of civilization, and we feel that additional millions of people should be shown the advantages of owning and living in their homes, with the peace, comfort, happiness and security it brings. The home owner possesses civic consciousness and is a substantial asset to the community. He has pride in his own property, his streets, and his city, and is thus made a better citizen. His children have a heritage of environment and early influence that nothing in later years can destroy and which fosters in them the desire for a home of their own when they have attained maturity.

"With property owners strongly organized we should be able to achieve results in bringing about an equitable readjustment of the tax burden on real estate.

"In conjunction with the Californio Association of Building Owners and Managers, California Land Title Association, and California Building Loan League, we have submitted our plans to the State Tax Commission. Our fundamental objectives in taxation readjustment are equality in the application of the taxation burden, limitation of taxes on real property, and effectve economy in public expenditures. We are working in the interests of the owners of the home, the farm and the man who builds up industry.

"Real estate board appraisals as a service for public bodies occupy our attention. We feel that the Realtors who are trained in this work and who hold certificates from the State Association and University of Southern California course, are qualified to make evaluations for the municipalities, cities, counties and the state. Many of the counties have endorsed this move and will employ Realtor appraisers under the auspices of the real estate boards.

SPEAKING of SPORT

Random Reflections On Sports Topics

Baseball's holdouts had little success this year. Lou Gehrig, Bill Terry and all the other "big shots" finally signed at the terms dictated by their employers. . . . Eddie Morgan and Carl Reynolds are the only serious holdouts remaining. Morgan isn't keen about staying in baseball anyway and doubtless has completed his major league career. Reynolds is in a tough spot. He certainly is worth a big salary but has the misfortune to be with the Chicago White Sox who are notoriously a low paid club. "Wee Dickie" Kerr can testify that the Sox would rather force a star out of the game than to pay him a fancy salary. . . . If the Sox were as liberal as some other clubs, baseball probably would have escaped having a crooked world series. The "Black Sox" all were working for small salaries although they included the greatest stars of the day. . . .

Cubs Are Favored To Regain Flag

Outside of the Cardinals themselves hardly anybody familiar with National League affairs expects St. Louis to repeat as champions. While betting odds list the Cards, Robins and Cubs on an even plane for the pennant, expert opinion seems intent on eliminating the Cards and rating even the Giants higher than the 1930 champs. . . . Joe McCarthy former Cubs manager, says the Cubs will win the pennant. Joe believes the additional hurling strength secured during the past winter and the return of Rogers Hornsby as playing manager will carry the Cubs into the world series. . . . Dan Howley, Cincinnati manager who took plenty of razzing last spring for insisting that St. Louis was the class of the league, has shifted to the Cubs and says they should be outstanding favorites. . . . Everyone agrees that the Cubs are weak at third but it is believed that if Hornsby is able to continue at second he will send Blair to third in place of Bell . . . . Bell is a good hitter but he has no arm.

Wrestling Next For the Primo?

Primo Carnera may be good for one more "big shot" as a heavyweight title contender but on the strength of his showings against Jimmy Maloney and Paulino Uzcudun it is safe to assume that he will be eliminated thoroughly when he meets Sharkey, Schmeling, Stribling or whoever receives the assignment . . . Primo's managers are reported to be considering future plans for capitalizing the Vast Venetian and wrestling may be their next step. . . . . Carnera tried his hand at wrestling in Europe before becoming a boxer and doubtless can be exploited into a big money maker at the mat game . . . With the experience gained in fistic hippdromes, Primo should feel right at home among the wrestlers.

Southern California Has Many Hurdlers

LOS ANGELES.—The University of Southern California track team, defending Intercollegiate Amateur Athletic Association of America titleholder, is not at loss for low hurdlers, for seven men adept at the low barriers greeted Coach Dan Cromwell at the initial workout this year.

The squad was headed by Bill Carls, national champion last year; Ernie Payne, who took second to Carls in the I.C.A.A.A.A. meet; Al Vignolo, Bill Stokes, Duncan Powers, John Moffatt and Roy Delby, a reformed sprinter from Fullerton Junior College, who is being groomed for additional points in the timber-topping event.

Throwing Arm May Win Outfielder Regular Berth

DETROIT.—One of the finest throwing arms possessed by a big league recruit is expected to win a berth in the Detriot outfield for Frank Dolijack, who came up to Detroit from the Wheeling, W. Va., team late last season.

Dolijack, 21, and apparently a natural born ball player, finished the season's playing right field for the Bengals. He has the best throwing arm of anyone of the Detroit team, runs the bases well, and showed ability to hit big league pitching in the score of games he played in the majors.

Michigan Starts Spring Football Practice Soon

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Spring football practice at the University of Michigan will start March 30, two weeks prior to spring recess, instead of after the annual vacation, as in the past. Coach Harry Kipke will give the squad an additional three-week workout after classes resume. Freshman hopefuls already are going through the spring grind, with three sessions a week. Their practice sessions will end March 30.

Varsity Ball Stars Win from Galileo

Behind the steady pitching of Will Scheyer, who allowed but one hit during the six innings he pitched, the Sequoia Union high school varsity baseball team defeated the Galileo high school batsmen 6 to 2 on the Sequoia diamond last Tuesday.

The Cherokees scored four runs in the second inning on hits by Cullen, Langbehn, walks by Abbott and Hoffman, and finally Scheyer pounded out a double to send across three men.

In the sixth the Cherokees tallied two more runs on a single by Lewis and Tognoli's walk, scoring on a Lion error.

During the tilt the Cherokees collected six hits to their opponents three. The Lions scored their two runs in the seventh period, but were to late to threaten the score.

This (Friday) afternoon the Sequoia varsity will take on the top-notch Jeffeson high school varsity team in their second Peninsula Athletic League start of the season. Last year the Cherokees were defeated in the league finals by Jefferson and again this year the Indians and the Daly City team is classed as the cream of the league.

The Cherokees took six out of eleven possible firsts and made several good marks in spite of the wet track. No trackman on either team grabbed more than one first.

Mack of Montezuma led to the scoring with a first and a second. Everett and Marino of Sequoia got a first and a third place apiece. Semeria put the shot 48 feet 11 inches to break the league record unofficially.

Cherokee Boxers Disbanding Team

Sequoia High school's hoxing team decided to disband early this week, following the announcement that San Jose High school could not fulfill their agreement to meet the Cherokees in contests slated for Friday evening. As no other high schools have enough interest in the sport to send a team against the Indians, the locals are ending a long season.

The team members began training in December and efforts were made to arrange boxing cards with other prep schools immediately after the school championships were held, but no opponents were available.

Shakespeare Contest

With each student learning 25 lines of Shakespeare, the English classes of Sequoia Union High School will again compete in the twelfth annual contest for high school students of California, held under the direction of the University of California Little Theatre.

The best boy and girl from each class will be chosen to compete with the others who entered the contest, and a boy and a girl will be picked for the final tryout to be held at the International House auditorium Saturday April 18. The semi-finals will be held before the student body in the auditorium.

Schools competing will be divided into three groups, A, B, and C, according to the size of their student bodies and winners will be chosen from each group. It is suggested that lines such as Hamlet's soliloquies and Lady Macbeth's sleep-walking scene be avoided.

Music Meet

Participating in the annual music festival to be held May 5 at the San Jose State Teachers' College, Sequoia Union high school will send 14 student musicians as representatives to play in the 75-piece band to be composed of the best members of various high school organizations.

This year's program is entirely different from that of last year, it is stated; instead of every school playing a selection with its band, one large band will perform.

Sequoia's representatives are: Billy Dusel and Fred King, first B flat clarinet; Dorothy Denton, second and third B flat clarinet; Clifton Woodhams, solo B flat cornet; John Argo, second and third B flat cornet; Murray Studley and Jane Duncan, French horn; Rudolph Kalenborn, oboe; Kenneth Bomberg, C flute; Ford Shepherd, alto saxophone; Walter McCaulty, E flat bass; Wilbur Woodhams, baritone; Charles Quan, first and second trombone; and Victoria Parsons, euphonium.

Among the pieces to be played are: "Light Cavalry," overture, byF. von Suppe, H. S. McCurley, San Jose, directing; "Ballet Egyptian" by Luigini, Klyne Headley, directing; trombone specialty, not selected yet, and Offenbachian" selection arranged by Boettger, George M. Wihr, San Mateo directing; medley of school songs arranged by Brose, and "Southern Wedding," E. O. Brose, Burlingame, directing; "Serenade," "American Patrol," by Meadow; and "Star Spangled Banner," by Francis Scott Key, directed by Harold Mathews of Palo Alto.

Arithmetic Class

To help the adults who have need of simple arithmetic in business a class in elementary arithmetic is being organized in the Sequoia Union High Evening School, according to Charles Brown, principal.

"If enough are interested, the class wil lbegin immediately, but if not, it will start in the fall," stated Brown.

HOLLYWOOD, March 19 (U.P.)—It may seem strange, but girls don't write mash notes to Lew Cody as they do to so many other screen actors. At least, as a general rule they aren't in his mail.

Why the girls don't write to Lew, he does not know and it puzzles him. He misses them.

Some of his mail comes from children, who tell him about their own father, or from men who have slipped and seek advice as to a return to right living. Young wives ask him how they should handle a wayward husband.

"Maybe you think I don't worry about the ones from the neglected wives," Cody said. "I answer them personally. I try to be funny and tell them not to take life too seriously, but really my heart aches every time I read such fan letters.

"People who live away from Hollywood believe that our lives are all one jaunt of pleasure. They do not know that our problems are just as difficult as theirs. They look for answers and they shape their lives by them."

Women who write to Cody refused to believe that the debonaire sophisticate of the screen is the true Cady. They picture underneath this exterior a kind, simple man.

"Sometimes I worry about playing the light roles I do," Cody went on. "Then I look over the fan mail, find that some old lady really got a smile out of it and I feel better.

"Some persons even write and want to reform me."

Cody's latest appearance is in "Three Bad Men," his fourth talking picture.

Redingote Dress

Afternoon Dress

There has been little change in the general silhouette this spring. Flares in skirts are moderated, while pleats and ruffles are more frequently seen. The normal waist line is worn by the majority of women, but the individual who realizes that the normal waist line is not becoming may make a higher or lower adjustment of same.

The three major types of dresses are:

1. The Jacket Dress, which makes a dress into a costume. The jacket matches the dress exactly, or contrasts with it by the use of a print or plain material of the outstanding color. The popular bolero jacket ends above the waist line. The straight cardigan type is either belted or unbelted and ends at finger tip length. There is the fitted flared jacket, and one with the peplum, also finger tip length.

2. The Redingote Type Dress has a long fitted coat of light weight wool or silk, which ties or buttons on the side.

3. The Afternoon Dress with ankle-length skirt is worn in plain or printed crepes and chiffons, with or without accompanying jackets.

The popularity of fur bands on afternoon dresses is still raging.

Short sleeves are used in all types of dresses and fabrics. The short sleeve ends anywhere between the elbow and shoulder and if straight, is trimmed with a band, bow, button effect, lingerie trimming, or ruffle. The flare sleeve is also popular. The three-quarter sleeve ends anywhere between the elbow and wrist and is either flared or straight. Many of the jackets are cut with a three-quarter sleeve and have the long sleeve of the dress showing under it —it is more gnerally used on the afternoon dress however.

Yokes, deep cuffs, wide collars, and vests of lace, embroidered batists, nets, and chiffon are being used. Bows and scarfs have become an integral part of a dress; they are usually of the same fabric as the dress in matching or contrasting color.

Plain colors in crepes and chiffons are beginning to gain in popularity, but as yet the prints are most extensively used.

New Cars Replace Old

SACRAMENTO, March 16—(UP) Fifty per cent of the automobiles manufactured in the United States last year replaced cars that were worn out or junked, according to the state division of motor vehicles. Thirty-two percent of the output was sold to persons buying their first cars or extra cars, while the remainder, 18 per cent, was exported.

Men Milk Cows As Part Of All Night Party

LOYALTON, March 18.—(UP)—"Swing your partners and get ready to milk the cows."

These may be the words of the "caller" of the Virginia reel at future dances held in this mountain town if the example at a recent dance is repeated.

An old-time dance at the Antone Dotta ranch lasted until milking time Sunday morning and the men stayed long enough to help Dotta milk 80 cows.

The job was through at 6:30 a. m., and breakfast was served to all hands.

Poultry Industry in California Seen to be on the Increase

$65,000,000-a-year Business Is Again Starting Back to Prosperity

COUNTY'S VALUE $50,000

Sonoma County Is the World's Egg Basket

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 19 (U.P.)—The poultry industry in California is about to stage a comeback.

Struck a staggering blow last year by low prices and disease, this $65,000,000-a-year business is again starting on an upward curve to better times—if not to prosperity.

Such is the prediction of leading California poultry experts, who point to the fact that only three years ago the annual poultry business was ony $45,000,000.

Today the state has more than a million dozen fowls of all kinds, with a total assessed valuation of more than four million dollars.

In San Mateo county there are 1,000 dozen chickens, a report of the state board of equalization says, having a total assessed valuation of $0,000.

A one-year study made in Sonoma county, the "Egg Basket of the World", showed that the average income per hen for that period was 92 cents. Each hen averaged a net income of 23 cents to her owner. Records on more than 125,000 laying hens were included in the story.

"Last year proved to be a slightly better poultry year than 1927," the report said, "and 1927 was the year of lowest farm income per hen of five years the study has been carried on. During that time, egg production increased from 130 to 140 eggs per hen.

"To realize a farm income of $2,000, with conditions prevailing as they did during the last year, the average poultryman had to keep a flock of 1,550 to 1,600 laying hens. This required an investment of about $6,000, which does not include the poultryman's home."

"The use of electric lights in chicken houses neither increased the egg production per hen nor the farm income per hen."

County Defender Proposed in Bill At Legislature

New Official Would Defend Those Tried in Court Of County

By J. F. McLAUGHLIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, March 19—(UP)—San Mateo county's public defender versus District Attorney Franklin Swart.

Such a legal lineup in criminal cases may become commonplace if a bill introduced in the state legislature by Assemblyman Frederick F. Houser of Alhambra becomes a law.

The measure would create the new public office of county defender, a position similar to that of the district attorney, except he would be "on the other side of the fence."

The official would be appointed by the board of supervisors and to be eligible must have practiced law in California for at least five years.

The defender, under the terms of the bill, would receive the same salary as the district attorney, but would be entitled to only one-half the number of deputies and other employes allowed the prosecutor.

The measure proposes that "upon request of the defendant or upon order of the court, the public defender must defend, without expense to him, any person who defies to be so defended and who is not financially able to employ counsel." The law would apply only to cases coming within the jurisdiction of the superior court.

The need of such an official has been noted generally in the more populated counties of the state. The smaller counties are expected to fight the measure inasmuch as the additional expense of such an officer would not be compensated by the duties he would be called upon to perform.

It is the contention of some proponents that a person has a right to a proper defense equal to the prosecution. Others claims that the bill would abolish evils growing out of the court appointment of attorneys to serve as defense counsel without fees.

This practice, it is claimed, is fair either the defandant nor the attorney on the ground the lawyer is not interested enough in such a case to present it properly.

KELSO, Wash.—George Berg, also contractor built the county jail. Then he was sentenced to serve 60 days behind his own bars on a charge of driving while drunk.

PUBLIC HEALTH IS PROVINCE OF STATE CLAIMED

Develop Health Phase of Child Welfare in Keeping With Intellectual Life

SO SAYS STATE BOARD

School Districts Should No Be Expected to Assume Buden

By MELVIN LORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 19. (U.P.)—Public health control is essentially a state and county problem and should be directed and financed as such.

This is the contention of the state department of public health in a statement pointing out the necessity of developing the health phase of child welfare in keeping with progress in the "development of intellectual life."

School districts in San Mateo county should not be expected to assume the financing of a nurse inspection service in augmenting a county service.

If a part of the financial support must come from the schools, it should come from the unapportioned county fund and the added service extended over the entire county, the report stated.

The department believes it is the function of a county health unit to guard the health of a child from the time it is born until manhood.

"A nurse should visit every newborn child and a health center provided where his development may be watched and the questions of his mother may be answered," the report urged.

"A health officer should watch carefully the milk and water the child drinks, isolate the children who might infect him, purify the home and community environment, and stand ready to make him immune to smallpox, diptheria, and other communicable and contagious diseases.

When he goes to school, a doctor and a dentist should examine him and remedy any defects. His teacher and a nurse concern themselves with his health progress and teach him in the way that he can understand how to make the most of his physical development.

California now has 14 counties with full-time health units, and the state health department points out that others are being organized inasmuch as a tax not to exceed 5½ cents on the $100 has been found sufficient for the operation of the service.

County Assessor Addresses Club

County Assessor D. P. Flynn of this city was the speaker at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Burlingame-San Mateo Kiwanis Club at the Hotel Benjamin Franklin in San Mateo Tuesday. He devoted his time to an informal and instructive talk regarding the proposed re-assessment of San Mateo county, pointed out the difficulties of arriving at a real equitable assessment of every taxpayer and outlined the benefits that will be derived from the new valuation program.

The club observed St. Patrick's Day in carrying out the program for the day, green being in evidence as the prevailing color. Miss Mary Flynn, daughter of the speaker, sang several Irish songs, being accompanied on the piano by her sister, Miss Frances Flynn.

Harold Casey was the chairman of the day.

SALTILLO, Miss.—A commission to the rank of second lieutenant in the New York state militia made out in 1802 to the great, great uncle of R. S. Rice was unearthed here recently.

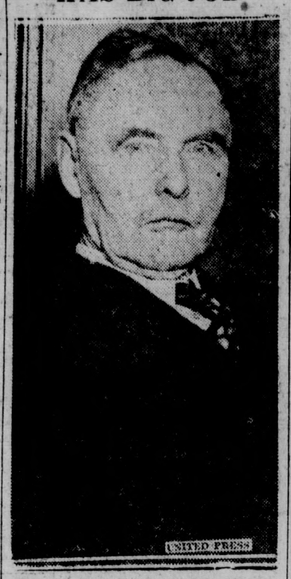
HAS BIG JOB



War hoops have changed to "boop-boop-a-doop," according to F. C. Campbell of Helena, Mont., "great white father" to 50,000 American Indians. Campbell, director of the U. S. Indian service for Montana, Wyoming and the Dakotas, finds that saxaphones have supplanted tom-toms of other days. King Jazz holds sway on the Indian reservations, and ancient tribal dances have given way to modern steps.

Cat With "Brains" Dead in Santa Ana

SANTA ANA, March 16—(UP) — "Nigs," one of the smartest mouse-catching cats in the west, is dead.

The huge black cat, owned by J. L. Lockhart, achieved fame by her unique modus operandi. For weeks she came to the breakfast table and begged for a piece of cheese. One day, Lockhart followed her.

"Nigs" made for the woodshed. Peering through the door, Lockhart saw the cat place the cheese in front of a hole in the wall and began blowing her warm breath upon it.

Presently a mouse came out of the hole, its nose quivering ecstatically at the aroma of the cheese. "Nigs" promptly pounced upon the mouse and made short work of it.

Yes, Thank You!

WE ARE STILL WELL AND HEALTHY.

So we go on doing business in the same forceful style.

Yes, thank you, we are still glad to be the store that some don't like, for if we didn't amount to anything nobody would care one way or another.
